

Guidance on Fair Access to Care is that Councils should assess an individual's presenting needs, and prioritise their eligible needs, according to the risks to their independence in both the short- and longer-term were help not to be provided. Councils should take a longer-term preventative view of individuals' needs and circumstances. With regard to their resources and other local factors, Councils should focus help on those in greatest immediate or longer-term need.

The eligibility framework is graded into four bands, which describe the seriousness of the risk to independence or other consequences if needs are not addressed.

The four bands are as follows :

- there is, or will be, an inability to carry out vital personal care or domestic routines; and/or
- vital involvement in work, education or learning cannot or will not be sustained; and/or
- vital social support systems and relationships cannot or will not be sustained; and/or
- vital family and other social roles and responsibilities cannot or will not be undertaken.

- involvement in many aspects of work, education or learning cannot or will not be sustained; and/or
- the majority of social support systems and relationships cannot or will not be sustained; and/or
- the majority of family and other social roles and responsibilities cannot or will not be undertaken.
