Delete It has always been our aspiration at IY to be able to offer real, short-term paid placements, work experiences and Apprenticeships to the young people who come through our programmes. This would give them 'CV Gold' and a platform from which to build. These are young people with significant talent, will and competences but often face significant barriers to employment. We currently have our IY Ambassadors group and our Bright Sparks Youth Board which allows us to offer a creative progression route once a project is finished, however, in this climate, these are not paid roles. Perhaps Apprenticeships or placements could be shared and costs split between small 3rd sector orgs and a private sector sponsor? Or more than the minimal tax breaks against the cost of an Apprenticeship. The city as a whole should invest in its young people - and not just the young people who excel academically but those who express their intelligence in different ways.

Check out what our IY Ambassadors get up to by following their BLOG!

I run a training company based in York, called GAP Training Limited. We currently have funding to help unemployed people find work through the creation of Apprenticeships. The message is not getting through - either young people or businesses - that Apprenticeships are a real alternative to going to college or university and avoids the problem of building up debt with tuition fees and student loans etc. Apprenticeships allow individuals to 'earn as they learn' and are available in a variety of subject areas, including Business, Retail, Logistics and Customer Service, to name but a few.

Employers with less than 1000 employees can also benefit from generous grants to help them take on Apprentices.

If City of York Council took on even one Apprentice in every department - how many 18 - 24 year olds could this support? If the council could act as a 'hub organisation' to draw together employers, prospective

Apprentices and local training providers to a one -day event, this would ensure there was a clear picture of what really is on offer in the City.

Delete Supported volunteering and mentoring to enable young people to reach out to develop their own personal interests is one way forward into work.

Reaching Out, funded by The Big Lottery and based at The Children's Society's PACT Project here in York, has been building bridges to enable disabled young people (aged 16 - 25), to participate in meaningful and enjoyable activities as part of an inclusive work force.

Over the last 3 years 85 disabled young people, supported by 36 volunteers, have contributed over 4800 hours to community volunteering with 79 organisations in York. The brilliant news is that 41 of these young people are continuing to volunteer and 11 are in paid work as a result of their personalised volunteering experiences. All have gained confidence, new skills and new friends who involve them in the local community.

Take a look at <http://www.childrenssociety.org.uk/reaching-out> for more information and also the attached Out in Front newsletter for young people.

We have produced two DVDs with young people so that they and the support volunteers and organisations can tell others about their own experiences of the barriers and benefits of volunteering. We are using these resources in workshops with local voluntary groups - then supporting them to set and meet their own Reaching Out Challenges for inclusive supported volunteering.

There is an ongoing need for person centred interventions.

A new strand of our work is extending the Reaching Out model through a local partnership with JobCentrePlus. WorkAspire is designed to support young disabled people to identify their own skills and, with the help of a support worker, find relevant volunteering and longer term work opportunities.

How best can we share this work and learning with others?
