	to avoid aimioocoodiy dupiid	and made of recourse.	- .

Due to the over-arching nature of York's collections, we will take account of all museums in North Yorkshire, and other subject-specialist museums, as appropriate to each collecting area. The overriding impetus for our approach to regional collecting is that important material should be held in public collections with appropriate standards of collection care and interpretation, whether we or another are the most appropriate museum. We will work with other museums and museum services to develop the collections regionally, to ensure that collections get the best care, and are in those places where they will best meet the needs of the users.
